

Why Aren't More People Talking About Physician Suicide?

Pamela Wible, M.D.

I live in Eugene — a sweet little community with snow-capped mountains, farmers' markets and the friendliest people around.

But a few weeks ago, one of our beloved pediatricians shot himself in the head in a public park. Earlier this year, one of our surgeons was found dead in his car from carbon monoxide poisoning.

And just before him, a urologist shot himself in the head in his backyard. Before him, a local anesthesiologist was found dead of an overdose in a closet and a family physician jumped in front of a train.

What does it mean when our healers take their own lives?

And why aren't more people talking about physician suicide?

Continue reading... [1]

Source URL (retrieved on 03/06/2015 - 8:45pm):

http://www.surgicalproductsmag.com/blogs/2012/11/why-aren%E2%80%99t-more-people-talking-about-physician-suicide?qt-recent\_blogs\_articles=0&qt-recent\_content=0

Links:

[1] <http://www.kevinmd.com/blog/2012/11/arent-people-talking-physician-suicide.html>