

Point-Of-Care Work Stations

Each Proximity WorkStation can combine the benefits of a computer desk, a secure medication distribution point and a medical device carrier into a single, stationary and strategically placed unit. They put computer technology, information, medical devices, medication and supplies directly at the point of care. In doing so, Proximity WorkStations increase efficiency and accuracy, reduce staff fatigue, and increase available time for direct patient care and personal interaction. When not in use the work stations close, securing equipment, protecting patient privacy and freeing up valuable facility floor space. All Proximity WorkStations feature durable wood construction and curved edges for improved safety and hygiene.
